

SUMMER 2010

University of Toronto
Centre for Global Change Science
Summer Internship Programme

As one component of the Scholarship Programme of the recently established Centre for Global Change Science at the University of Toronto, the following undergraduate opportunity is announced:

Undergraduate Summer Internships in Scientific Research

Undergraduate students with an interest in environmental Biology, Chemistry, Forestry, Geography, Geology or Physics are invited to apply for summer internships to be held at the University of Toronto. Successful applicants will have the opportunity to work within the research groups of faculty affiliated with the Centre as well as to participate in activities that will expose them to the full breadth of topics that are of concern in the area of global change science.

Each internship will be of 12–16 weeks duration and will be awarded on a competitive basis. Interested undergraduates from across Canada and elsewhere are encouraged to apply. However, preference will be given to Canadian citizens and permanent residents according to Canadian immigration regulations. The Centre will work with successful applicants to identify appropriate summer accommodation on the campuses of the University. Summer salaries will be at the rate of $1900–$2000/month depending upon last year of undergraduate study completed.

Prospective summer interns are responsible for identifying a faculty advisor in the specific sub-area in which they would prefer to work. Please check the CGCS web site for a list of faculty: <http://www.cgcs.utoronto.ca/people.htm>

Interested applicants with an appropriate background in science and engineering should arrange to have an official copy of their undergraduate transcript and a one page (maximum) letter describing their interest in global change science sent to the following contact person by February 26, 2010.
